Why reference/cite?

References must be provided whenever you use someone else's opinions, theories, data or organisation of material. You need to reference information from books, articles, DVDs, the World Wide Web, other print or electronic sources and personal communications. A reference is required if you:

- quote (use someone else's exact words)
- copy (use figures, tables or structure)
- paraphrase (convert someone else's ideas into your own words)
- summarise (give a brief account of someone else's ideas).

How to reference

There are two parts to the Harvard (author-date) system of referencing:

1. The author and the date are referred to in the text or main body of your writing (called in-text referencing or citing).
2. All of the resources referred to in the body of the writing are included in the reference list at the end of the assignment. All information is included in this list: author, date, title of publication, publisher and place of publication.

When you reference sources of information in the text of your assignment—regardless of whether you quote, paraphrase or summarise—you should include:

- the author's surname (family name)
- the year of publication
- page numbers when directly quoting or closely paraphrasing an author's words/material or referring to specific information on a particular page
- correct punctuation and spacing.

In-text references

There are two ways of referencing in-text: author prominent and information prominent.

Author-prominent

This way gives prominence to the author by using the author's surname (family name) as part of your sentence with the date and the page number in brackets.

Direct quote example

Unterhalter (2007, p. 5) argues that 'gender equality in schooling is an aspiration of global social justice'.

Note: Include the page number when quoting the author's exact words.

Paraphrase example

According to Unterhalter (2007, p. 5), equal treatment of the genders in education should be the goal of every just society.

Note: Include the page number when citing information from a specific page. This is particularly important when citing a lengthy document.

Information-prominent

The other way of referencing gives prominence to the information, with all the required referencing details given in brackets after the citation.

Direct quote example

It has been argued that 'gender equality in schooling is an aspiration of global social justice' (Unterhalter 2007, p. 5).

Note: Include the page number when quoting the author's exact words.

Paraphrase example

Equal treatment of the genders in education should be the goal of every just society (Unterhalter 2007, p. 5).

Note: Include the page number when citing information from a specific page. This is particularly important when citing a lengthy document.

When to include a page number

You do not need to use a page number if you are summarising the general themes of a document in your own words.

Include the page number when quoting the author's exact words. When paraphrasing, providing a page number is optional. It is recommended you provide a page number when it would help your reader find the exact source of your paraphrase (e.g. references to a specific sentence, paragraph, chapter, table or chart).

What is plagiarism?

Plagiarism is the intentional use of someone else's ideas, words or concepts in your assignment work without appropriate acknowledgment. It is considered serious misconduct at university and should be avoided at all times. CQUniversity has a policy on plagiarism and you are strongly encouraged to familiarise yourself with it. The following URLs will lead you to:

CQUniversity's Plagiarism Procedures

http://policy.cqu.edu.au/Policy/policy_file.do?policyid=1244

Student Misconduct and Plagiarism policy

http://policy.cqu.edu.au/Policy/policy_file.do?policyid=1245

Committing plagiarism can carry very serious penalties for students, including expulsion from the university.

For help avoiding plagiarism, see the Academic Learning Centre's Academic Integrity and Plagiarism module, available from the home page of the ALC's Moodle site.

Paraphrasing

Paraphrasing is putting someone else's ideas into your own words. When you paraphrase, you must provide an in-text reference to show that the material comes from another source.

When you reference a paraphrase in text, you must provide the author and year of publication. You may also provide the page number, if you think it would be helpful to your reader. In other words, providing a page number for a paraphrase is optional.

Quoting

Short quotations

Single quotation marks are used around direct quotes of fewer than 30 words. When quoting, you must give the author's exact words.

Short quotations (fewer than 30 words) should:

- be incorporated into your sentence without disrupting the flow of your paragraph
- have single quotation marks
- have the full stop after the reference if the quote is information prominent (brackets close the sentence)
- have the full stop sitting after the close of the quote if the quote finishes the sentence (see below)
- be in the same font size as the rest of the assignment.

Incorporating a quote into your sentence —information-prominent

Although students are initially nervous, 'when students conquer the challenging initial days of the program, they begin to settle into a routine' (Doyle 2006, p. 86).

Incorporating a quote into your sentence—author-prominent

Students are initially nervous, but as Doyle (2006, p. 86) suggests, 'when students conquer the challenging initial days of the program, they begin to settle into a routine'.

Note: When an upper-case letter starts a quote which comes in the middle of a sentence, it is acceptable to change the upper-case letter to a lower-case letter so that it fits with the grammar of your sentence (unless the word is a proper noun).

Long quotations

Long quotations (30 words or more) should:

- be introduced in your own words
- not have any quotation marks
- begin on a new line
- be fully indented by default (i.e., 1.27 cm) from the left margin
- be in single line spacing
- be in a smaller font. That is, use one font size smaller than the font you are using, for example, Times New Roman 12 is reduced to Times New Roman 11 for a long quote, while Arial 11 is reduced to Arial 10.

Separate the quotation from the lead-in statement with one blank line. The lead-in statement ends with a colon (:). Separate the quotation from the text that follows it with one blank line.

Note: For a long information-prominent quotation, the full stop goes after the quote and before the in-text reference, as shown in the example below.

Example of a long quote—information-prominent:

Though many may recoil from making their private lives public in digital spaces, there are obvious benefits for young people:

The public life is fun. It's creative. It's where their friends are. It's theatre, but it's also community: in this linked, logged world, you have a place to think out loud and be listened to, to meet strangers and go deeper with friends. (Nussbaum 2007, p. 27)

Example of a long quote—author-prominent:

Rowan (2001, p. 39) summarises the effects of a limited world view when she states that:

This poses a real challenge for educators. In many cases, we are drawing on educational resources, or curriculum documents which are in themselves fairly narrow in the view of the world they represent. This helps to make this view seem natural and normal.

If educators have a limited world view they will be unaware of the gaps in texts.

Note: If you need to omit a word or words from a quotation, indicate this with an ellipsis (three dots). If you need to add a word or words to a quotation, put them in square brackets.

Quote within a quote

When a quote appears within a quote use double quote marks. For example:

‘The first words of Melville’s Moby Dick are “Call me Ishmael” and these words are full of significance’ was the first statement in Smith’s memorable speech (Johns 1995, p. 43).

Quoting incorrect spelling, punctuation or grammar from an original source

Direct quotations must be accurate. So, if there is any incorrect spelling, punctuation or grammar in the quote insert the word sic, italicized and square bracketed, straight after the error in the quotation. For example: ‘the building inspector estimated that there [sic] house was a fire hazard’ (Wilson 2013, p. 32).

Always give the page number for a direct quotation, or when referring to a specific diagram, table or chart. When paraphrasing, providing a page number is optional.

The word “page” is abbreviated to p. If there are two or more pages, use pp. For example: (Smith 2012, p. 6), or (Smith 2012, pp. 12-15).

The following examples illustrate the different styles of punctuation used when citing page numbers that are not consecutive, that are consecutive, or that are from a document that does not have page numbers (as with many Web sites):

One page referred to	(Priest 2006, p. 4)
Pages that are not in sequence	(Owens 2009, pp. 1, 4 & 6)
Pages that are in sequence	(Warnock 2012, pp. 25–26)
Pages from an unnumbered document	(Pickering & McMahon 2010, para. 3)

Quoting online material that has no page numbers

Normally, direct quotations are cited with author, year and page number in brackets but many electronic sources do not provide page numbers. In this case, if there are paragraph numbers, use the paragraph number in place of the page number, with the abbreviation para. For example:

A BP spokesman reported that ‘The new construction includes a containment cap with a built-in “blow-out preventer”, the device that failed to cut off the oil flow’ (Mann 2010, para. 4).

If neither page nor paragraph numbers are given, it is acceptable to leave them out even for a direct quote as most electronic material is searchable, so readers are able to find the quoted material for themselves.

Use of 'et al.'

For references with two or three authors, give all authors' names in every in-text reference.

For references with four or more authors, list only the first author's name followed by 'et al.' (which stands for 'and others') in your in-text references. For example: (Chaffee et al. 2000).

Note: et al. should not be in italics and there should always be a full-stop after al.

Difference between a reference list and a bibliography

A reference list includes all the sources of information that have been cited in-text in a piece of work and is located at the end of the piece of work and arranged in alphabetical order.

A bibliography lists all works consulted when preparing a piece of work, whether or not the works have been cited in the document. This means that all the works referred to within the document as well as all works consulted but not referred to would appear in the bibliography in alphabetical order. Unless your assignment instructions specifically request a bibliography, a reference list is generally all that is required.

Capitalisation

Harvard style uses minimal capitalisation for the titles of books, book chapters, journal articles, reports and Web sites, but maximal capitalisation for the titles of journals and other periodicals.

Table 1: Capitalisation

Minimal capitalisation	Only the first word in the titles of books, chapters, journal articles and Web sites is capitalised, regardless of how it is capitalised in the original title. Authors' names and initials, journal titles and the names of publishing firms and business or organisations are always capitalised. If the title of the article, book or chapter contains a colon, the first word after the colon should not be capitalised unless it is a proper name. For example: Jones, B 1999, The history of rock: John Lennon, Zen Publishing, London.
------------------------	---

Maximal capitalisation	For the titles of periodicals (journals, magazines and newspapers), capitalise the first word and also any other word which is not 'the', 'a', 'an', a preposition (such as 'for', 'on', 'under', 'about') or a conjunction (such as 'and', 'but', 'or'). For example: The Journal of Sociology .
------------------------	--

Use of city, state, and country location information

For most print sources, the place of publication should be provided in the reference list (along with the author, year, title and publisher of the work). This refers to the city in which the publisher is located. If several cities are given on the source, use the first-listed city.

If the place of publication is little-known, provide the state as well. For example: St Lucia, Qld.

If the place of publication could be confused with another city of the same name, provide additional information to clarify the location. This may take the form of either the state or the country. For example: Cambridge, UK.

Formatting your reference list

The reference list begins on a new page. It should be the last page of your assignment (unless you have appendices, which go after the reference list). The reference list is left-margin aligned, is done in single line spacing and uses the same font as the text of the assignment. Leave a blank single-line space after each reference. You can find an example at the end of this guide.

The title of your reference list should be References and it should be:

- bold
- left aligned
- in the same font style and size as the document.

Note: In Harvard style, headings are neither underlined nor punctuated.

Some further tips for organising your reference list include the following:

1. The reference list is arranged in alphabetical order according to the author's family name (surname). (Do not use numbers, letters or bullet points to begin each entry.)
2. Any reference that starts with a number (e.g., 3D Networks 2007, Delivering on performance and investment, viewed 15 July 2010, <http://www.3dnetworks.com/>) precedes the alphabetical listing and is listed numerically.
3. Where there is more than one author of a publication, maintain the exact order of their names as they appear on the title page of the publication.
4. If a source is authored by an organisation rather than an individual, list it alphabetically according to the organisation's name. For example: CSIRO or Education Queensland.
5. If there is no author or sponsoring body, list the reference alphabetically according to the title of the article itself. The whole title of the resource must appear, but when listing alphabetically, ignore words such as 'The', 'A', 'An' at the beginning of the reference's title. For example, 'The Australian child' should be alphabetised under 'A' for 'Australian'. Be wary of using resources with no identified author.
6. If there are two or more references by the same author, list them in order of publication date with the oldest work first.
7. If references by the same author have been published in the same year, list them alphabetically according to the title of the book/article and add a lower-case letter to the date, both in the in-text reference and in the reference list. For example: Education Queensland 2007a, Education Queensland 2007b, Education Queensland 2007c.

Referencing journal articles and periodicals

When referencing a journal article in the reference list, the following elements should be presented in the following order:

- surname (family name) and initials of author(s)
- year of publication
- title of article in single quotation marks and minimal capitalisation
- title of journal or periodical in italics and maximal capitalisation
- volume number where applicable
- issue number or other identifier where applicable, for example, Winter
- page number(s).

Use this format with articles found both in print journals and in electronic journals found through the CQUniversity Library catalogue or databases, including ACQUIRE.

Journal article from the Web

If you find a journal article through a standard Web search (e.g. using Google or MSN, not through a CQUniversity Library database or Discover It!), give the full details of the article as shown above and add the date you viewed the Web page and the Web address of the article. For example:

Kennedy, I 2004, 'An assessment strategy to help forestall plagiarism problems', Studies in Learning, Evaluation, Innovation and Development, vol. 1, no. 1, pp. 1–8, viewed 7 October 2005, <http://www.sleid.cqu.edu.au/viewissue.php?id=5>

The 'Cite' option in CQUniversity Library's Discover It! service

If you find an item in Discover It!, you will see a 'Cite' button on the right-hand side of the screen. This button will display your item in a number of different referencing styles. The referencing style called Harvard in Discover It! is a USA version of Harvard, and is not the same as the Australian version of Harvard used by CQUniversity. Be sure to use the referencing style shown in this Harvard guide.

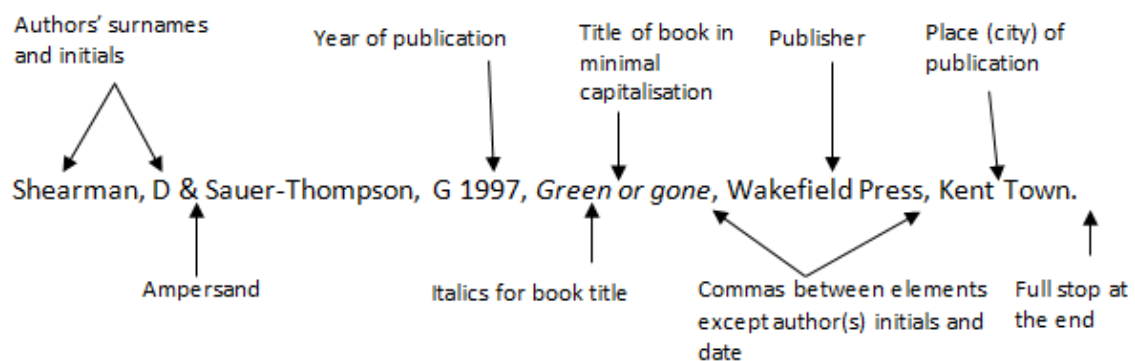

Referencing a book

For a book, the following elements should be presented in the following order:

- surname (family name) and initials of author(s)
- year of publication
- title of book in italics and minimal capitalisation
- the edition, if not the original publication, for example, 4th edn
- publisher
- place of publication.

There should be commas between all elements except the initials of the author(s) and the date.

Book

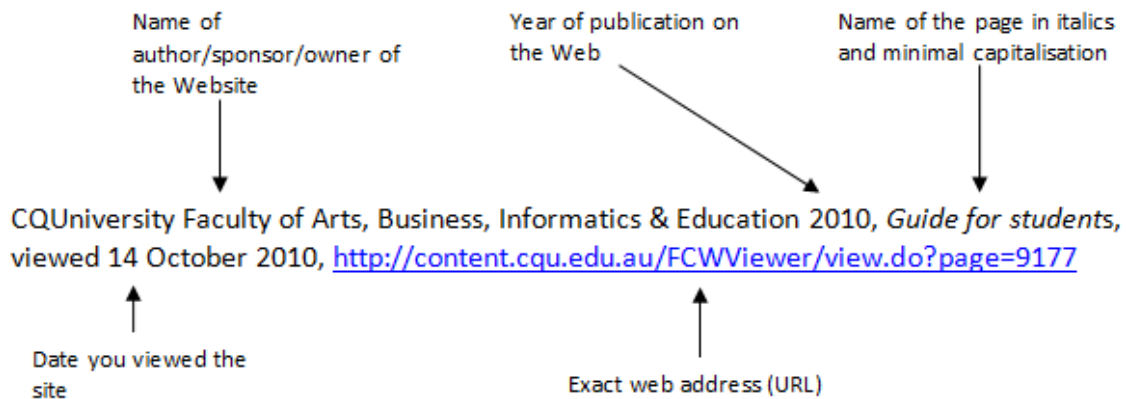

Referencing a Website

For a Website article, the following elements should be presented in the following order:

- name of the author/sponsor/owner of the site
- year of publication on the Web—if no date, use n.d.
- title of page/site in italics and minimal capitalisation
- date you viewed the site in full
- URL (Web address), underlined, no full stop.

Website

Using URL references

URLs are underlined and in black font; most word processing packages will automatically underline the Internet address.

Long URLs

To avoid very long URLs, it is acceptable to give the home page for a Web site rather than the exact Web address of the page you are referencing as long as the Web site has a search facility. For example:

Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) 2007, Australian social trends, 2007, cat. no. 4102.0, viewed 7 July 2010, <http://www.abs.gov.au/>

Unpublished sources

Always try to use published materials for your assignments. Unpublished materials usually comprise theses or papers/abstracts presented at a conference. Be wary of using them. If in doubt, consult your lecturer to see if the resource can be used.

If you want to use material from one of your previous assessment tasks, you must ask the lecturer for permission to do so.

Appendix/Appendices

An appendix comprises supplementary material that is collected and appended at the back of a book or report—supporting evidence for your assignment. The word Appendices is the plural form of Appendix. Appendices go after the reference list.

Each appendix is a separate item and goes on a separate page. They are usually lettered, not numbered—Appendix A, Appendix B and so on.

Any tables or figures in an appendix take their caption from that appendix, e.g., in Appendix A, the table would be Table A1; likewise for a figure, Figure A1 and so on.

When to use numbers expressed in words

In a text where numbers are not a significant focus, use words for numbers up to one hundred. In addition, use words for common fractions, for example, ‘one-fifth of the class’.

Use numerals for numbers over nine in documents where numbers occur frequently. A number, however, is always expressed in words at the beginning of a sentence, for example: ‘Forty-eight per cent of the sample ...’.

When to use numbers expressed as numerals

Use figures for numbers:

- preceding measurement, for example, 3 cm
- grouped in figures, for example, 3 of 21
- used as statistics, for example, 4% of the population
- used in times, dates, ages, money.

Assignment formatting using Harvard style

Numbering the pages in your assignment

In Harvard format, page 1 is the start of the task—there are no page numbers for the title page, abstract or table of contents.

Tables and figures

Tables are numbered and the caption is put above the table. The source goes straight underneath as per Table 1 in the ‘Capitalisation’ section above.

Figures are numbered and the caption goes underneath the figure. The source goes straight under the caption. For example:

Source: Bureau of Meteorology (2012)

Remember that photos, graphs, diagrams and drawings are figures and need to be referenced accordingly.
